(1) Powers have been delegated in Govt. order No. F. 4253-300/Legis 6-12-87 & 2-15-16 to Hds. of depts. in regard to ordering free supply of Govt publications to offices subordinate to them.

to regulate such supply by an authorised list as in the case of Civil Lists, History of Services of Gazetted officers & Monthly Progs. volumes.

(3) The Mysore Account Code is a publication newly introduced & is required as a book of reference almost in every office of the State. It is a point for orders as to whether it is desirable to restrict the supply & interfere with the discretion vested in the Hds of Depts in regard to the supply of such an important book of reference.

(4) If it is thought necessary to standardise the distribution of Copies of the Code, similar action has probably to be taken in regard to the Service Regulations (now under issue) which is as important a book of reference.

The matter has been discussed by the Admn. Offr. (Accts.) in connection with the Comptroller's letter No. 24/D dated 25.8.21

CHIEF SECRETARY'S OFFICE III 26 AUG 1921 MILITARY MISCELLANEOUS

Sir,

I have the honor to state that many requisitions for the several volumes of the Mysore Account Code, are being received from the Deputy Commissioners and Heads of Departments for supply of these codes to the minor offices and sometimes even to the several sections of offices under their charge, and that, with the limited number of copies printed, it is not possible to comply with these numerous requisitions. After the stock of copies of Volume I, of the 1st Edition of the Code was exhausted, a second or reprint edition of the same was issued and at the rate at which copies are now being asked for by the several offices and at the rate at which they are being supplied by this office, it seems to me that the entire number of copies of the 2nd edition will be very soon exhausted. In these circumstances, it is very necessary ~~of that~~ the distribution list of copies of the several volumes of the code should be standardised by Government so that this office and the several departmental offices may know definitely to whom copies have to be supplied. It will be convenient if the Deputy Commissioners and Heads of Departments are supplied with the allotted number of copies for their districts and departments and that

SIR,

With reference to your No.1079/G.M.42-21-2 dated 15th September 1921 calling for a standing list of offices which have to follow account rules and therefore must have copies of the Mysore Account Code, I have the honor to state that as all the offices referred to in List II appended to Government Order No.1681-1730/EAG.415 dated the 8th March 1920 have to follow several of the general account rules found in Mysore Account Code, Volume I, all of them require copies of that volume and nearly 1500 Volumes have been already distributed in this manner.

If as suggested in para 2 of your letter under reference an abridged edition of Volume I containing only the more important and general rules applicable to all departments is brought out, I am of opinion that that edition will suit the needs of only the small offices, mentioned in list II of the Government Order dated the 8th March 1920, the present volume being still required to be supplied to the larger offices and treasuries as per accompanying statement A. Such a compilation is not necessary now, in view of the supply already made to almost every office included in List II

After the book is published they will be paid suitable honorarium to be fixed with the previous approval of Government. I do not however think that the preparation of a smaller edition is at present urgently called for. The other volumes of the Code are intended for the use of special departments and the account office and their distribution is shewn in the accompanying statements B to F.

I do not see the need for this when all that is required is a reprint with slight modifications by Y.
